

CALL FOR PRESENTERS
Society for Ethnomusicology Education Section
Day of Ethnomusicology – Friday, October 29, 2021
DEADLINE: June 1, 2021

The Education Section of the Society for Ethnomusicology is pleased to announce a call for proposals for the 2021 Day of Ethnomusicology in-reach event scheduled to take place on Friday, October 29, 2021 in Atlanta, Georgia. This event brings high school students to the conference site to engage with ethnomusicologists in participatory music-making activities from diverse musical cultures. Presenters share 30-minute participatory workshops on a topic of their expertise with a group of 15-20 students. Potential presenters should submit proposals adhering to the following guidelines. Submissions not adhering to these guidelines will be automatically rejected. All workshops should feature music-making activities in which the students can participate.

SUBMISSION FORMAT

Please send an email with the subject heading "SEM Day of Ethno Submission" and attach a PDF or Word document including the following information:

1. Your name, academic affiliation (or independent status), position, and email address. If you are a student, please list your current degree program.
2. Title of presentation, including musical culture that will be presented.
3. A one-paragraph abstract of the workshop and an outline of what you will cover in your workshop, including participatory music-making activities.

All submissions must be received by midnight EDT, June 1, 2021.
Notification of acceptance will be sent electronically by June 15, 2021.

Send submissions to Katherine Palmer at katherine.palmer@mim.org
